OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF MYSORE

Bangalore, 12 February 1904.189

SIR,

With reference to your docket No.Fl:2051 of the 6th Instant requesting my opinion as to whether House-building Advances can be made to Mutchies and other Menial Servants under Codal rules, I have the honor to state that Article 136 of the Civil Account Code contemplates the granting of advances to officers who are desirous of building ~~advances~~ houses for occupation of themselves in places where there are no houses available or where houses rent is exceptionally high. It makes no distinction between officers of superior and inferior service and can therefore be taken as to include both.

Strictly speaking such advances are not permissible where houses are procurable; but in view of the prevalence of plague all over the Province, all are anxious to leave the conjested parts of towns and build houses away from such places. I think therefore that orders of Government No.3528-562 Fl: 365 of 28th November 1898 which included Menial Servants in the scheme may be made applicable to the present applicants for such advances.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,
